

Prodigious Son: A Memoir of Miracles

Ralph Matson

Transcribed by John Kessenich

"Never have I had the pleasure of reading a memoir so thoughtful in its understanding of humanity, the preservation of memory, and a feeling of optimism that compels you to leave its pages rejuvenated and optimistic about what there is to come." – Sarah Tierney, copy editor

"Prodigious Son" is an honest and insightful look into a life well-lived and filled with colorful tales." – Jack Bornoff, screenwriter

"Prodigious Son reflects hope in the face of catastrophe. Corky Matson is a remarkable person, soul and example of a life well lived." - Russell Jaffe, MD, Ph.D. CCN

How many times can you cheat death on your path to enlightenment?

Meet Ralph "Corky" Matson, a modern-day urban shaman who constantly beats the odds. In this fascinating memoir, Matson leads us through Woodstock, down drug alleys, over mountain ashrams and around gamblers on a never-ending quest for higher consciousness as he struggles with his inner demons and angels.

His adventures with remarkable spiritual masters along with a myriad of metaphysical experiences will suspend one's disbelief. Fraught with poverty and an abusive father, Matson's childhood sets the conditions of a defined personality that can only be rescued by a loving heart. As the decades pass his expeditions and miracles continue to shed light on the love and realization he seeks. Edgy, yet inspirational, Prodigious Son: A Memoir of Miracles offers hope and spiritual awakening in the middle of despair.
